

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

IN VACATION.

Different but the Same.—On the floor of a deserted jury room were found recently twelve slips of paper which represented a ballot. The vote stood as follows: 6, Guilty; 3, Gilty; 3, Gildy.—Exchange.

Laywomen and Legal Nomenclature.—An old lady came into court one day, and said to his Honor:

“Are you the judge of reprobates?”

“I am the judge of probate, madam. Perhaps that is what you mean.”

“Well, I expect it is. My husband died detested and left several small infidels and I want to be their executioner.”—Central Law Journal.

Limit of Punishment for Invisible Support.—A traveler tells of a trip on a jaunting-car in Ireland, where he had as a fellow passenger an ugly-looking man, whom he was not sorry to leave behind at an inn.

“That was a queer-looking fellow, Pat,” he remarked to the wag-gish driver, as he proceeded on his way.

“Faith, yer Honor, he’s as square as he looks. He’s a villain. He’s done fifteen years for laving his woife without visible means of support.”

“Oh, get out, Pat! A man can’t get fifteen years’ penal servitude for leaving his wife without visible means of support.”

“Shure, and can’t he, sir?” said Pat, with a twinkle in his roguish eyes. “He did, though. And, bedad, isn’t it laving yer woife without visible means of support when ye throw her out of a window on the third floor?”